Harrington Multimodal Freight Terminal Feasibility Study

The City of Harrington wants to promote industrial development and jobs on three separately owned properties totaling 131 acres that lie adjacent to the Delmarva Central Railroad (DCR) Indian River Branch.

The new multimodal freight terminal is not only located in an excellent location for freight infrastructure, but it presents an opportunity for a development with large industrial sites. It will directly connect with the railroad and support the long-term growth of the state's economy.

The draft study is now available online at www.doverkentmpo.org under Studies.

The screenshot displays a GIS application interface. On the left, a legend panel lists several data layers: 'Legend', 'MUT Projects', 'MUT 2013 Accidents/High Mile Buffer or Major Intersections (2011 and 2012)', 'MUT 2013 Accidents/Quarter Mile Buffer or Major Intersections (2011 and 2012)', 'MUT 2013 Accidents/Half Mile Buffer or Major Intersections (2011 and 2012)', and 'DuRTI Road Functional Classification'. The main map area shows a detailed view of a city street network, likely Houston, with numerous colored circles and squares overlaid, representing accident hotspots and project locations. The circles are color-coded by accident count, and the squares represent specific project points.
